Photoshop provides many powerful tools for image manipulation, but it also allows you to modify the appearance of your document via layers. This tutorial will teach you how to use Photoshop's features for image editing, including layers, masks, fonts, bitmap filters, selection tools, and adjustment layers. You will learn how to add or remove objects from your photo, apply effects, create shapes, crop photos, remove blemishes, and improve color. All of these operations can be done quickly and effectively with Photoshop's powerful tools. Please note: You need to download the full version of Photoshop. If you're already running Photoshop CS5, you can skip this tutorial. In this tutorial, you'll learn: Basic Concepts Converting to Black and White Making Panoramic Images Using Image Masks Adding Text and Graphics Sepia Tone Painting a Photo Crop, Rotate, and Resize Resizing and Aligning Effects and Layer Styles It's important to understand the basic concept of Photoshop before you start. If you have an understanding of image files and the basic concepts of manipulating them, you should be able to master this tutorial. Step 1: Watch the Video Tutorial We suggest you watch the video tutorial. The video tutorial will show you how to use Photoshop. To begin, open Photoshop and click on File > New. In the New Document dialog box, enter a name for the document that you would like to use for your photo. The size and type of your new file will determine how much information you can edit. When choosing a file size, it is important to note that Photoshop uses a double-byte format known as the Windows-1252 (also known as Western European (W.E.D.), Latin-1, or ISO 8859-1). This file size can take up about double the space of a similarly sized picture in TIFF, JPG, or JPEG formats, which means that the file will be larger, but it will open faster. If you have a larger file, Photoshop will open faster and save more time. The time it takes to edit can vary, but on average, the file size will be about three times the size of the original. This size is about the size of two small photos stacked together. Step 2: In Photoshop Step 3: Your

PD arrested a 61-year-old Florida man for allegedly throwing Molotov cocktails at the inside of a Taco Bell restaurant. Gary Wills, also known as Gary Wills-Smith, was charged Monday after Austin-Towson police said they found him Saturday morning outside the restaurant in Austin-Towson. Crimestoppers said Wills was behind the arson fire that engulfed the Taco Bell restaurant's front door. The fire was extinguished by Austin-Towson firefighter and saved the Taco Bell's employees from any injuries. Police said the Taco Bell is thankful to the firefighters for their quick response to the fire. "The employees at the Taco Bell are glad that they were out on the location and able to put the fire out without any bodily injury," Austin-Towson Police Chief Marcus Smith said. No police officers were injured in the incident, Smith said. According to TPD, the vehicle that Wills was traveling in was spotted by an officer. "He was actively putting the fire out. The fire department assisted by putting the fire out and then the officers got a little bit closer and had him step outside the vehicle," Smith said. Wills was arrested and charged with one count of arson. He is being held in the East Florida Regional Jail. Detectives said they suspect Wills and others may have been responsible for other arsons in the area.Q: Can't use Naughty Dog Encore PS4 Pro with HDR and V-synced games Here's what I'm trying to accomplish with Naughty Dog Encore: Play (in HDR) PS4 games on PS4 Pro. Play (in HDR) PS4 games on PS4 Pro. Play (in HDR) PS4 games on a standard PS4. Normally, I'd assume that this was possible, as all PS4 Pro games offer 4K and 120FPS 30Hz V-Sync. However, I tried installing Encore (v. 6.5.0.1191), and I only see the PS4 Pro title "Play Video Games" under TV Mode Settings. The "Play Video Games" section is completely missing all the settings I'd need to play HDR video games and stream them to my TV. Also, V-Sync is off for the installed PS4 Pro games, which seems odd to me.

Hi! This is Mary Kay. Welcome to my Blog. I will be here to give you constant encouragement. I want to inspire you to live a "different" life. One that is filled with excitement and learning. I will be able to do this if God allows me to overcome the battles I face with learning disabilities. This blog will be filled with lots of learning resources and tips for your children's learning and everyday life. Pages Thursday, May 31, 2014 On my blog, I share a lot of things about me. That's fine. Not everything about me is well. Not everything I share is very happy. I share all of this because God will say that if I'm to make it to heaven, I have to be more like Jesus than the world around me. I share things that will be helpful to the reader. I will be coming out with a video about something that I will teach in a public park next month. It's not public yet, but I will. One of the things I've learned in the past few months is to give myself the grace to be patient with me. It's been hard. I can be more patient than I should be. It has even been hard to find ways to show grace to me. When I told one man that I had learned to become more patient to myself, he said, "It's so hard to give yourself grace. It's easy to give them to others." Even though I share much with others, there is not much that I can share with me. It is easy for me to blame others for my problems, but it's never easy for me to look at myself and see that I am even less capable than anyone else. It's important to know that, and to help me. Recently, I made a promise to myself, and I am writing to tell you about it. I will share this promise in a short blog post and a video. Since the video will be public, the picture above is of me right now (yes, because I often share pictures on this blog). I look different in the video, but it will be hard to notice (unless I could get some bangs or something). Please click here to watch the video. I hope it will touch you. I have learned that we sometimes have to make changes to get us out of the cycle of sin. I have learned that we need to accept things in our lives with which we don't agree. I don't like
